I am writing reference the law truck drivers have to speak English. They live and work in the United States of America where the language is English. If they do not want to learn our language they should go back to their country and work and live there. Why should our public servants in the United States have to learn a foreign language? If this foreigner gets an accident and hurt, how well the paramedics or Doctors know where the foreigner is injured if they do not speak English? Is this country expected to have someone who speaks foreign languages everywhere these foreigners go? I lived in Germany for 3 years, and if I had to go to town for something I had to know what I wanted. They did not go find someone to speak English for me.
