FHWA-97-2769-22

QH #1 27927

To Whoever concerning docket FHWA-97-2769.

I think it is a shame and disgrace that the ACLU is even allowed to exist - and with Federal Funding according to what I understand.

I think that all drivers carrying a CDL or operating under FMCSRs should be able to speak and read English. This is America.

There is nothing wrong with learning the language and how to write it. I see nothing wrong with other cultures working and living here - but why change the rules just because someone that does not speak or read English wants to drive? It could even be dangerous.

Why not change job requirements? Is this not a form of discrimination? Get real - I think we're letting organizations like ACLU carry things too far.

How can a Public Service or DOT do their job at times if the person can not speak or read English? Are the requirements for their jobs gonna change to where they have to know at least 10 languages? Get Real.
