TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

It has been brought to my attention that there are questions and concerns being raised about the adequacy of entry level training provided for truck drivers that need a CDL.

Under no circumstances, does it seem necessary to even question anyone's training policies or procedures. How many training hours? - Look at the people around you and I'm sure you will agree, that given the same set of instructions, one person could learn it in a couple of days and it may take weeks for the next person.

Please be aware that we fully support the belief that training must be adequate to obtain the CDL and School Bus endorsement or the person does not get licensed.

It makes no sense to even discuss any of the mentioned topics when the bottom line is and should be "the license".

Sincerely,

Ronald R. Bast
