

It is essential that this country continue to support a national passenger railroad network. This network must consist of short-distance corridor trains and interregional Long-Distance trains. It is essential to the current and future mobility of this nation that such a network exist.