

Stop making vehicles safer and start making drivers safer. Improved education in skills and traffic laws coupled with more rapid corrective actions (driving privileges suspended or revoked) will yield a more useful societal result than better protection in the event of crashes at ever higher speeds in ever larger vehicles.