

Bicycling should be considered early in planning and design of every transportation project, and the choice of bicycling should be directly accommodated in the project whenever feasible.