

A year after one of the most horrible acts ever to be brought against this country, the nations traveling public deserves the most experienced pilots in the cockpits of our commercial airliners. There is no credible evidence that pilots over the age 60 are any less healthy or less physically capable of discharging their responsibilities. The FAA should immediately change the idiotic, over 40 year RULE that mandates pilots to retire at age 60. The FAA has demonstrated time and time again that they cannot be trusted to provide a rational argument in support of the rule. In fact, they have gone out of their way to prevent evidence to the contrary to surface and see the light of day. Other countries have changed their retirement age for commercial pilots - it is the time for the United States of America to do the same. Thank You, James H. Davis, Captain United Airlines, member of ALPA.
