

I applaud the FAA for its efforts to force airlines to increase the safety of commercial seats. I wish that the time period for the replacement of current seats was four years instead of fourteen years. I also wish that the FAA could mandate that coach class seats be made more comfortable, but I suppose that is beyond the FAA's authority.

Hugh Patrick
Private Citizen