

I would like to thank you for your efforts to make airlines accountable for the loss or death of animals put in their care for transport. Hopefully this measure can be finalized quickly and airlines having to report the inhumane treatment of animals - rough handling, extreme temperatures and lack of oxygen leading to pain, discomfort and even death of many families' companions. These monthly reports will help bring to light some of the mistreatment animals have had to endure for years and maybe make the airlines change their ways. Only one issue comes to light with this docket and that is these reports only deal with U.S. families companion animals - I would hope you could expand the coverage to include all animals (animals destined for labs and zoos and those companion animals of people not from the US, but riding on US carriers).

Thank you for your concern for animals and I am grateful on behalf of all companion animals. I hope this is a first step in the better treatment of all animals put in the care of the airlines.

Thank you,
Paul Kincaid
