RE: Docket No. FAA-2002-13378-204

To those concerned;

Please extend the public comment period from thirty to ninety days. It has taken the FAA more than two years from the passage of the law requiring regulation before publishing a proposed rule. Based upon this fact it could hardly be considered excessive to allow ninety days for public comment.

Further, this proposed rule relates to a reporting requirement which is meant to provide the public greater information concerning animal transport. It is of great importance that the agency receive adequate input regarding the form of this rule.

In its' current form the rule will effect thousands of people that ship pets by air. The rule may effect those persons' right to privacy. This must be reviewed in detail and rushing it could be detrimental to the entire process.

Please extend the review period for Docket No. FAA-2002-13378 to ninety days.

Kind Regards;
