Re: Daytime Running Lights,

I do not like daytime running lights. This opinion is based on over 25,000 miles driven per year. They glare and are distracting, especially on two lane roads. It is my opinion that they should be eliminated completely or changed to a color that does not glare, such as Amber. I believe the use of parking or hazard lights would be better. They make the vehicle visible and are not distracting.

Sincerely,

Richard D. Hartman
