Subject: CAPS Profiling

I recently read an article describing profiling using the CPAS system jointly developed by the FAA and NWA and am writing in support of this new rule.

The article was somewhat inflammatory with the ACLU predicting a virtual police state as a result of this, but I can honestly say that I would rather occasionally be delayed by increased security if I know that it is thorough and makes air travel safer.

I hope that when implemented, it is carried out in a respectful and diplomatic manner as well as expeditiously. Please remember that the majority of people chosen at random or by virtue of the score they receive are not terrorists. Having the contents of one's suitcase gone through in a rude manner or within public view would cause great frustration and a high number of complaints.

Sincerely,

Chris Douglas
Minnetonka, MN
