

Under Petitions for Rulemaking and for Exemption, it would be beneficial for the individual or company to be able to keep contact and communicate with the agency on the process of the exemption request. In experience not knowing when a exemption will be granted or denied it would be helpful to also be able as the individual or company to comment or meet with personnel to discuss problems with the request. This would be after the comment period and Federal Register. Having personnel that can communicate problems would help the individual or company show fact(s) that would solve the problem with exemption if any arise. I believe the agency should keep the individual or company informed because some regulations should not apply to some and that can affect the livelihood of companies. And timing is very important when it come to things such a Certifications of Aircraft.
