

If you ever lived by a railroad crossing you would know that the proposal to have all trains blow their whistles by such crossings is sheer lunacy. The amount of lost sleep and added stress that will create (which undoubtedly will shorten lives) greatly outweighs the few lives that would be saved.