

I would like to see the requirement of a valid medical certificate dropped from the private pilot criteria. The current requirement is expensive for the FAA to track and to my knowledge the requirement has no correlation to safety of flight nor is it based upon demonstrated performance limitations of the individual. In addition, it places a burden on the FAA to manage and discriminates against those of us who are disabled.

This is my only concern since none of the other regulations affect me until you drop this outdated reg.

Thank you for your consideration.
