

I find it unconscionable that all airlines would not have the proper tools onboard to adequately help a passenger during any type of distress. An AED would be one piece of equipment that should be mandatory on all commercial airlines/airplanes, no matter how big or how small. Until this is achieved, I hope no one in yours or my family has to fly aboard a plane that does not have one on board and becomes a tragic statistic.