

I do not think that a young driver of 18 years of age, carries the maturity, and overall safety skills, combined with experience, to navigate large trucks through our roadways. Public safety should come before profits. How many families lives will have to be shattered before this legislation is rebuked? It doesn't make sense. The data is there, check the insurance companies statistics on young drivers.
Best Regards,

L. E. Koffel