

I want to express my strongest objection to the idea of allowing younger drivers to operate large trucks on the road. There is already great carnage on the highways involving these rigs and automobiles. There must be strong action taken to improve prosecution and penalties of the existing drivers who endanger those on the road. It must not be allowed to get even worse by allowing statistically more riskier operators behind the wheel of the underregulated killing machines. Sincerely, JT Clark