

I do not believe that vehicles should have tire pressure monitors. Vehicles are a responsibility & privilege. Checking & maintaining air pressure is as important & easy as checking oil & re-fueling. The pressure monitor system should be an OPTION for those who don't know how to do such a simple task. For the rest of the people, who know what they're doing & do not want to be forced to pay for another system (which is just another thing that would need service), they can choose not to get the option.

Let's stop trying to stuff car with all this nonsense & gadgetry, which raise prices. The owner's manual has important information in it for a reason. If people choose to neglect their car, they can suffer the consequences.

Justin Mettee
Mechanical Engineer