

I guess the government has now decided that all people in this country who buy new vehicles are too stupid or too lazy to check the inflation of their tires. This is typical overkill on the government's part.