

In my opinion this couldn't have come soon enough. This has been going on much to long. From what I have learned on what we have to do to obtain this wavier isn't anything a diabetic shouldn't be doing anyway. What was your reasoning on why we couldn't cross the state lines? Aren't all roads the same? I have been driving a CMV for over 20 years and have compiled 1.3 million accident free miles in my own state and no diabetic problems. I hope the decision is made in our favor quickly. I know that there are a lot of special interest groups that are fighting this, but with the mangament tools that we have to control our diabetes there won't be any problem driving across the state line. I will look forward to hearing your decision. Mitch Pullen Central City NE
