

In regards to HID lights, I find that they can be almost blinding when a car equipped with these lights is driving behind you. They not only light up the interior of your car they create a terrible glare from both rearview and side view mirrors similar to driving with high beams on. SUV lighting is easier to cope with by adjusting the rearview mirror.