

I have a comment about the high intensity discharge (HID) headlights. They are blinding and hard to adjust to for us, especially on a two-lane highway. On a four-lane, divided highway, there is sufficient separation between the lanes, that keeps the oncoming lights from blinding us, but not on a two-lane highway.