

Headlamp glare - Headlamp adjustment should be required every 3 years. There are many vehicles with fog lamps that get bent on curb stops, in accidents, etc. They never get repaired or adjusted. Also, no one knows when to use their fog lamps, including all the idiots who have rear (red) fog lamps that drive around with them on all the time. It's like staring into brake lights all the time.

Trucks with snow plows need better mounting systems and need to be required to have adjustments every year due to the rough use they are exposed to.
