

Regarding headlights--I do not feel that HID lights create a problem for night time driving; I have experienced driving towards these lights and have not found them to be bothersome. As we see more of these, I believe people will get used to them.