

With respect to mid air collisions, it is hard for me to imagine that the rules have allowed cargo aircraft to operate any differently than passenger aircraft all this time. A rule to require collision avoidance equipment on cargo aircraft corrects a long standing error in judgement by the FAA and is essential.