

Airline Pilots should be able to reduce the cabin pressure to a level of about 30000 feet and not activate passenger mask with a easily located switch. This would incapacitate all but those with oxygen masks (pilot/co-pilot).