

Why did you choose to use 12,500 pounds and more instead of the normally accepted (CFR 49 Part 1) definition for large aircraft as more than 12,500 pounds. Now the operator of a Metro II (SA-226), technically a small airplane, must comply with these additional requirements. I understand a number had to be chosen; why not stick with the established standard.