

This proposal would create substantial new burdens on the aviation community without a concomitant benefit to security. Privacy issues are essentially ignored and the government increases its reach into places where it either has no business or is incapable of performing with any expediency.