

I strongly support returning the DC-3 airports back to the constraints that they operated under before September 11, 2001. There are many ways of protecting the general public from airplane terrorism, including AOPA's new GASECURE phone number and guidance for identifying security problems. When we take away liberties without specific, identified threats, the terrorists win by changing us into a fearful society.