

I understand & agree with the goal.

I am concerned about what would constitute "Posing as a security threat".

Many laws & regs serve as a pain in the ass to the innocent, are too easily abused and are little threat to the guilty.

At the end of the day you better do something far more serious than tell someone that they no longer hold a ticket, because a real threat could care less about that. Simply: this will inflict pain on someone that poses no threat and do nothing to someone who does.
