

September 11th surely brings about feelings of rage and a feeling of necessity to make changes that will mitigate possibilities of like events. I believe we cannot enact policy that can be used for purposes other than intended. This policy makes no standards of which to judge a security task and is wide open for abuse.

Also, how many of the 911 hijackers had FAA documents? We are kidding ourselves that this type of authority would dissuade this type of activity. It will however be used for other than the intended purpose.
