

Since there has been no evidence of accidents caused by or related to insufficient maintenance of flight simulators and the added expense to flight schools to meet these proposed new regulations I feel they are uncalled for and will place an unnecessary burden on students and flight schools.