

Mayflower should do non-regulated testing for those employees not covered for required DOT testing. Many companies test CDL drivers in a regulated pool, and test non-regulated employees in a different non-regulated pool. They simply start a program under company authority, and use the same testing rates for the non-regulated pool rather than diluting the CDL pool. I am against granting Mayflower an exemption.