

Dear Sirs:

We are writing in response to your request for comments for Docket NHTSA-2003-15651-1. Here are our comments:

1. We agree with you in principal that all replacement lamps must have the same functions as the original lamps.
2. However, we do believe that some degree of flexibility or variation must be granted. For example, head lamp bulbs with different specs that achieve the same functions should be allowed interchangeably as long as they meet all necessary regulations and sufficient instructions are available to the vehicle operators
3. The more strigent of interpretation you publish, the heavier consequence the manufacturers will bear. Please re-consider the interpretations.

Best regards,
