

I believe that the exemption should be granted. In my experience with vehicles of this size and type, having the brake controls on the handlebars allows for a much more intuitive experience. Additionally, I agree with the assertion that such a brake configuration allows for a greater level of precise control, something of which is extremely important in a two-wheeled vehicle of this nature.