

Automotive technology has developed and redeveloped itself at least ten fold in the past twenty five years. Despite the technology changes in the last quarter century, Tire technology has went virtually unchanged (excluding the tire mounting system from wood to steel). I support the TPMS act and comment Public Citizen for there enduring support of the Act.