

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am very concerned that your proposed change of policy (the so-called "Secure Flight" program) might have the effect of giving the federal government the right to prevent law-abiding Americans from flying. In fact, American taxpayers have not been presented with any information that should show how passengers can contact the TSA to determine whether the information on your list is erroneous or correct mistaken information.

In order to show that the provision of information proposed under the "Secure Flight" program is lawful, please provide evidence that the people selected for the proposed program have given their permission for their information to be turned-over to the government.

Please also share with the American public the results of your earlier testing of personal information databases, as well as whether or not there have been any administrative punishments for earlier invasions of privacy of millions of Americans conducted by your department.
