

There is no evidence to support the case for this being necessary. In fact, the only evidence I am aware of is how well this sort of thing worked in Nazi Germany and Communist Russia. As Americans, do we really want to enter into the same sort of restrictions that contributed to the downfall of our past enemies? Look at movies in the 80's and how they show the evils of not being able to travel freely within the USSR. Secret Police and Patrolled Internal Borders are un-American, and let us have the sense to recognize that.
